I have come to the conclusion that there are no accidents or coincidences in life. I believe we are exactly where we are supposed to be doing exactly what we are supposed to do—even if the path is not always totally clear in the moment. So when I started noticing that gratitude and gratefulness kept coming up a lot in my thinking, in the grace I offered at lunches at Academy, in my meditation, I decided there had to be a reason.

There were several seemingly unrelated things that came to mind. My own battle with shingles and my gratitude that they were waning, if not totally gone. My gratitude for all of the support from Lifespan participants and their friends and families, both emotionally and financially. You really have been amazing with your contributions. The excitement of seeing new people participating in the academy and new courses and presentations coming into the lineup.

But this still did not seem to totally explain why gratitude was so present in my heart lately. Why was it popping up around me. And why was it creating such feelings of joy? All of these questions lead me to the writings of a Benedictine Monk, Br. David Steindle-Rast. Brother David, through his book and his website, gratefulness.org, identified two important qualities of gratitude. The first is appreciation—the sense that something has value to us outside of its monetary worth. But the second quality seemed to define the truth of my experience. Gratitude truly is “gratis.” In other words, it is freely given to us without our doing anything to earn it. As Angeles Arrien says “Gratitude is essentially the recognition of the unearned increments of value in one’s experience.” In her book Living In Gratitude: A Journey That Will Change Your Life” she talks about the International Encyclopedia of Ethics definition of gratitude…”the heart’s internal indicator on which the tally of gifts outweighs exchanges.”

I started to think about the items of value in my life for which I am grateful. All of you, of course. My brother’s continued good health. The opportunity we have to gather and nurture each other, even as some of our family have left us. Then there are the things that seem obvious, but are easily forgotten. The song bird, the blue sky, the cool breeze. Norma’s painting of walking in the rain that I couldn’t resist.

But gratefulness is a choice and it takes practice, as do all things of value. Brother David provides a set of steps for us to follow if we wish to engage in grateful living. Stop. Look. Go. Stop and “wake up to the surprises around us.” I use an app called Headspace for my meditation (Of course I do, right) And the first step in every session is to stop and listen to all your sense. Then, you look. You are aware of your opportunity. As Br. David describes it the opportunity to enjoy. Whatever it is, wherever you are, whatever the experience. Notice, enjoy, acknowledge. But the last step in Br. David’s process intrigues me. Go. Take advantage of the opportunity. Go with what you have found and truly experience it.

I know that I am grateful for all of you and the community of Lifespan. Br. David references an e e cummings poem in the title of one of his books. I am through you so I. “This sums up the author’s belief. I become who I am through you.” Stop. Look. Go.

Fondly,
Peggy Palmiter

Special talk and book-signing program!

Thomas W. Colley served in one of the most active and famous units in the Civil War, the 1st Virginia Cavalry, which fought in battles from First Manassas/Bull Run to the defense of Petersburg. In May 1861, along with the other members of the Washington Mounted Rifles, Colley left his home in Washington County, Virginia, and reported to camp in Richmond. During the war, he received wounds on three different occasions: first at Waterloo Bridge in 1862, again at Kelly’s Ford in 1863, and finally at Haw’s Shop in 1864. The wound received at Haw’s Shop resulted in the amputation of his left foot, thereby ending his wartime service.

Michael K. Shaffer is a Civil War historian, instructor, lecturer, newspaper columnist, and author. He is a member of the Society of Civil War Historians, Historians of the Civil War Western Theater, and Georgia Association of Historians. Shaffer teaches Civil War Courses at Kennesaw State University's College of Continuing and Professional Education, and frequently lectures to various groups across the country. After the talk, Shaffer will have copies of his books available for purchase!

Line Dancing – Rose Haven

Rose is the founder and director of two award winning competition dance teams. Rose brings all that line dancing expertise to her Lifespan low-impact, low-risk line dancing class. Enjoy the music and the moves.
Ukulele Group with Mary Crook Moran

Sound intriguing? NO MUSICAL TRAINING REQUIRED, BUT LOTS OF FUN TO BE HAD! Here are the details:

Who: For anyone who enjoys singing. Add a few chords played on a ukulele and there is music! And joy!

How: Beg, borrow or steal buy a soprano ukulele - the simplest and the smallest. And a gig bag to carry it in. Also, get an electronic tuner to keep it in tune. If you want some information, you can go to www.beginnerukuleles.com, or just google ukuleles and find lots of options for the whole kit!

Finally, get The Daily Ukulele Book, by Liz and Jim Beloff - also called the “Yellow Book.” This book contains words and music to 365 songs - along with the chord chart and how to hold it. The chords are simple diagrams placed above the words. Simple! Easy!

If you are more musically inclined, you should know that there are several types of ukes:

1. Soprano The first three are tuned the same way, but the Tenor has one string lower. The
2. Tenor Concert has longer fret board. The Baritone is tuned like the two 4 guitar strings. If you
3. Concert pick the Baritone, make sure you get the "Orange Book" for Baritone ukuleles. They all
4. Baritone come in many woods and colors - you may find yourself collecting them!
